Our 5 Sales Steps

1. Introduction – Opening, approach, establish initial credibility
2. Questioning & Building - Identify needs, ask how and what, establish rapport and trust
3. Sales Presentation - Product offer, solution, explanation, demonstration
4. Closing – Cover all objections, get agreement, commitment and confirmation
5. Follow-up - After-sales, fulfill and deliver our promises + get referrals

Our 5 Sales Steps

Step 1: Introduction

When you first meet the parent, remember that there will be many thoughts going through the parent's mind. They may:

- Think all sales people are not trustworthy and want to have a quick sale.
- Be confused with all the English Language, Mathematics and STEAM training options available to them in Vietnam.
- Be very busy and just want to enroll their child with us as soon as possible
- ... and many more.

You need to be aware that each parent will have a different mindset. It's your job to adapt to where they are, how they are thinking and address their pain points which are their problems, fears and concerns (if any) and help them make the right decision.

You will be A.L.L.'s first contact with the parent so take the opportunity to impress / "wow" them with your listening skills, presentation skills and passion in what you do.

Preparation:

- Get your laptop ready, your desk clear and our CRM/enrolment system loaded and offer the parent a drink (water/tea) to make them feel welcomed and comfortable. Research shows when someone has a warm drink they are much more open to making a buying decision / being sold to.
- Smile & be confident: Be professional and friendly. Take confidence from the fact that you are part of a great organization, selling a great product/service never seen before in Vietnam. You should be well aware you are helping a parent and student get access to the best US standard education solutions in Vietnam.
- Introduce yourself: First and last name, explain you are an EC, that you are here to LISTEN and to help them make the right decision by answering any questions they have and explaining what we can do for them.
- You should be using the parent's name (anh/chi) and their child's name. Use their names twice in the first 5 minutes. Using names is proven to create much stronger rapport and leads to natural conversations and builds trust.
- Ask how much time the parent has and agree a time to finish if required.

- Ask for the parent's contact information and enter it in to the CRM/enrolment system via your laptop, which should by now, be ready and pre-loaded. By entering this information into the system, the parent now becomes an official lead in our database for you to follow up post demo class, post placement test or post sale. You must record the parent's full name, mobile and/or phone number and email details into our systems. This should not take longer than 1-2 minutes.
- You will not need to complete this step if the parent has contacted A.L.L. prior and pre-registered for a consultation, PT or Demo Class.
- If the parent objects to disclose their personal information, then respect their wish but it's a sign that they may not be a genuine parent.

Introduction Script:

EC: SMILE and authentic welcome... "Welcome to A.L.L.. Please have a seat (glass of tea or water). My name is ... AB, I am an EC and I am here to answer any of your questions. May I have your name please?"

Parent: My name is... Y...

EC: Ms. Y, how can I help you today?

Parent: I want to know more about your courses / I want my child to learn English/Math/Science.

EC: Sure, I will be glad to answer any questions you have. First, let me take down a few key details and we can start talking. It will only take a moment.

EC: How has your day been? Did you have any trouble finding us? What activities or hobbies do your children have? Are you planning to do anything this weekend?

It's during this introduction that you have a glimpse into your parent's mindset and body language. Are they relaxed/ stressed/ hurried/ really interested/ just browsing...? Start with some friendly small talk, especially ask about their children, which school they study at? What are their hobbies? What did they do on the weekend? Show genuine interest in their lives.

Our 5 Sales Steps

Step 2: Questioning & Building Rapport and Trust

After the introduction, you move to asking the right questions to identify the parent's pain points and then help the parent make the right decision for their child/children. Your introduction should have given you a powerful insight into the parent to help you make your questioning relevant to the parent.

- Showing empathy and listening are crucial in questioning & building rapport and trust.
- Good empathetic questioning builds relationships, rapport and trust. Parents want to buy from someone who gives them time and skill to interpreting and properly meeting their personal needs.
- There are two main kinds of questions: open questions used at the beginning and closed questions used at the end.

What you need to be aware of as you question and listen:

- The parent may know nothing about A.L.L. and want to know a lot of details about us before selecting their English/Math/Science provider.
- The parent may know nothing and not really want to know anything – they just want to enroll their child quickly because they have been referred through a friend or family member.
- The parent may know about A.L.L. and just want to confirm what they know and heard is true before enrolling their child.
- Everyone comes in with a different mindset. We have to adjust to their mindset. The questions below help you understand your parent's situation and mindset.

Questioning and Building (Script, Open Questions): QUESTIONS FOR NEED ANALYSIS

Information about student questions:

- How old is he/she?
- What is her/his name?
- What are his/her likes/dislikes and hobbies?
- Can he/she write? (For Kindy students)
- Which school is he/she studying at now? Which is his/her schedule?

- Does he/she have to take part in any other extra-classes at school?
- Do you know anyone who is studying or has studied at A.L.L.?
- What is important and matters to you?
- Are there any requirements you have when choosing an English/Math/Science campus?

Skills level questions:

- How long has he/she been studying English/Math/Science? (Or has he/she studied English/Math/Science before?)
- Who is his/her current teacher? Has he/she studied with foreign teachers before?
- Which English/Math/Science campus is he/she studying at now?
- What things at his/her current English/Math/Science campus concern you enough to decide to consider changing campus?
- At school, does he/she have opportunities to communicate with foreigners?
- What is the method that he/she has been using to learn English/Science/Math? How is the progress? Does he/she like that method?
- Does he/she practice extra English/Science/Math at home?
- Does he/she try to use English/Science/Math with you or someone else, not only teachers?
- How much time does he/she spend studying English/Science/Math each week? (at home, at schools)
- Which skills would he/she like to focus on?
- Is he/she active in studying/using English/Science/Math at home?
- What is his/her current English/Science/Math level? Which skills does he/she need to improve?
- What are his/her strengths and weaknesses in learning English/Science/Math?
- Does he/she enjoy studying English/Science/Math?
- Which skill is he/she good at?

Needs and expectation questions:

- What is your expectation when he/she is studying English/Science/Math at A.L.L.?
- What is your main purpose when he/she is studying additional English/Science/Math?
- Do you have the intention of him/her to study abroad or obtaining any international language certificates (CAMBRIDGE/IELTS/TOEFLiBT)?
- Which school would you like him/her to study at next?
- Please share with me your learning goals for him/her?

Family situation questions:

- Which means of transportation do you use to take him/her to the school?
- Is your house nearby? Who will take him/her to the campus?

- Do you work in the area? (Learn more about their job; make prediction about customer's income...)
- What time would be possible for you to pick up him/her?
- Do you spend time studying English/Science/Math with he/she at home?
- How do you know about us (via Facebook, website or acquaintances)?

The parent should be doing 80%+ of the talking during this stage of the sales discussion. If you are talking for a third or half of the time, then you are not asking the right kind of questions.

Questioning and Building (Keeping control & shaping your responses)

Sometimes a parent will ask you questions about A.L.L. during this point of the discussion. It's best if you can explain to the parent you are going to answer all their questions in a couple of minutes after you have listened and understood their needs/pain points.

Keep the dialogue human – that means keep it real and natural (not robotic or fake). For example, if the parent says “My child has too much energy and is never good in a classroom setting.”. You can say: “I have had the same issue with my child” or “most children I have seen with lots of energy end up being very successful so it's a good sign”... Keep it human (natural)...

After you understand the parent's needs/pain points, give a quick summary to show you understand – recap back to them the key details or their main concerns. They should be impressed with your listening skills and caring skills. It sets you up nicely for your next step – your sales presentation/sales kit.

Our 5 Sales Steps

Step 3: Sales Presentation / Sales Kit

After you have the key details, concerns/issues from the parent and what they are looking for, you should then be able to move to the A.L.L. sales presentation/sales kit. This is where you match what we do to what they are looking for and provide them with the solution.

The sales presentation must be focused on their needs at all times, clear and concise, professionally delivered, and have integrity - the quality and integrity of the presentation is always regarded as a direct indication to the quality and integrity of A.L.L. If you are talking for more than 3 minutes uninterrupted, it's a sign you are talking too much and not engaging the parent. Remember to stop and ask them if they are clear or need further clarification.

The sales presentation should be easy and natural because with the information you gathered from the questioning combined with the sales presentation/sales kit, you should be able to impress the parent with what we do.

You need to make sure you have access to the following sales presentation/sales kit on your laptop and in hard copy as a back up. Use the parts of the sales presentation/sales kit which address the parents concerns most.

- An USP document which distinguishes us from competitors – This document will include for the parent our 3-4 reasons to choose A.L.L. for their children
- Quick demo of how we teach using technology and A.I. (video to be developed or show parents our demo accounts)
- Our “Needs” information form which clearly helps parents identifies pain points for their children and shows them how our courseware / programs can address them (to be developed/partly developed already)
- Template calendar of events and activities at the campus to show to parents
- Profile of our Head Teacher and Academic Managers
- “The A.L.L. Vision” info sheet and more information about us

Campus Sales Handbook

- “Steps to Fluency” chart showing international exam benchmarks for English/Math/Science.
- Real videos or images of our classes in action, with students speaking, reading etc... showing real production of the skills they have learnt in class (About 3 minutes. This should be a streaming link and parents can watch it before coming in to visit the campus. We can develop these when we do product sprints and testing)

“Ms. X, let me summaries how we can help your child with the XXXX issue and you will see how it is relevant to your child. Please feel free to ask me any questions as we go.”

“Let me start with why we are different from other schools. There are these key things that make us different...”

“This is our Needs information form, I will just summarize what your concerns have been and I will show you how we can help your child immediately.

What are our USPs?

USPs	Kindergarten English	Primary English	Problem Solving Mathematics through English

Secondary general benefits and selling points you can use:

(1) We are Pioneers of the best quality:

- 100% western (US, UK), fully qualified teachers in major city campus.
- 100% western (US, UK) teacher management
- 100% triple qualified teachers, Bachelor's Degree, CELTA / Maths equivalent and ICT certified by Microsoft/UNESCO/Pearson Global
- Our programs and courses are curated by academic experts with deep experience and understanding of Vietnamese learners
- We are benchmarked to US and Internationally recognised exams across English/Math/Science
- Social values incorporated into all our lessons
- More than any other campus, we like to educate and keep in touch with parents regularly through our digital reporting available to you on our parent portal.

(2) We prepare your child for the future. Our teaching is technology/AI driven.

- We are first in Vietnam to be legitimately incorporate technology and AI driven techniques in our physical classrooms and in our lessons (we show parents smart TVs, tablets and software in classrooms and Smart Labs)

- We use technology better than any other education provider in Vietnam, for example adaptive assessment in our Math program or speech recognition to help our students practice their pronunciation live in class and at home.
- Students will be more profoundly digitally literate and at a more advanced after studying at A.L.L.

(3) US programs and courses

- We bring the best US standard programs and courses to Vietnam for a number of reasons:
 - o US education standards and programs are designed specifically to prepare students to compete in a global market and prepare them for more workforce and university training programs.
 - o US standard programs and courses purposely focus on and develop the use of problem-solving skills and reasoning, teachers enable students to better prepare not only for higher education but also for future work and career success.
 - o US standard programs and courses are automatically benchmarked by international standards and will compare favourably to standards of other countries. Students who study US programs or courses improve their personal ranking on the global scene.
 - o US standard programs are accelerated in nature; they develop skills students' need in adulthood at an earlier age than any other country in the world.

Sales Presentation - Key things to remember:

- You need to be totally comfortable with understanding and explaining each of the bullet points above and applying them as a solution to the parent's needs, concerns/issues expressed in the questioning phase.
- Use the sales presentation, as you need it. Remember, parents are not there for a long boring pitch from you going through all the materials. You must understand their mindsets and apply parts of the sales presentation that are relevant to addressing their needs.

For example:

- Go through the points on an info sheet and use your pen to highlight the points that are most valid to your parent.
- If your parent has previously used Vietnamese language teachers, you can explain that at A.L.L., not only are our teachers qualified foreigners but even their managers are highly qualified foreigners with years of teaching experience.

- Additionally, if the parent says that international exams are important, you should use the “Steps to Fluency” chart to explain that all our courses are benchmarked to US and international exams and once their child reaches the right level, we can provide the relevant preparation and help for them to successfully take the international exams. We will also guarantee results for some students.
- If you are not sure about any elements of our sales presentation, review our training slides, which compliment this handbook. You should not be consulting parents and selling if you are not 100% clear and do not completely understand what makes A.L.L. different. New ECs should spend a considerable amount of time shadow consulting with their Campus Parent Manager.

Sales Presentation - Fees vs. Investment

Toward the middle or end of your presentation, the parent will likely ask about the course fee. If they don't ask, then you should mention it saying “let me tell you about the investment required.” Avoid using the word “fee” and use the word “investment” instead, so they can understand and develop the mindset that they will get a good return for their money. This will indicate something worthwhile in the long run rather than another “expense”.

Instead of just giving a number, you should recap quickly our 3 key reasons to buy in the sales presentation and what the investment includes before giving them the numbers.

EC: “You have 3 course options available to you, X months, Y months, Z months. It is more beneficial the longer you enroll as firstly it will ensure your child's learning and progress is consistent, uninterrupted. Secondly, being enrolled for longer entitles you to a better course rate for the course studied.”

All include:

- Our classes are taught by western, triple qualified teachers
- All student books and materials are included
- Unlimited and smart technology driven online resources for your child
- Access to our parent portal for you to track progress
- Access to our student and parent only events

At this point, ask them “which option works best for you?”

C: What's the cost?

EC: We have a few payment options available.

"We accept payment in cash, credit card, debit card and bank transfer. Alternatively, some parents also prefer a monthly financing option from a number of our partner banks. At the moment, we have interest free and points promotions with ABC and DEF banks. If you prefer, I can go through the details with you now." (Speak to MKT about current offers we have and prepare collaterals)

10 minutes should be long enough for the sales presentation. End by asking the parents if they have any more questions about A.L.L. Once you feel the parent understands what makes us different, you should then move towards closing.

Sales Presentation – Pains and Solutions Matrix

Our 5 Sales Steps

Step 4: Closing

To help you get a sense of whether a parent is ready to buy. Look back on your questions and use the B.A.N.T. criteria (BUDGET – AUTHORITY – NEEDS – TIME) mentally to see if you are close to closing (see separate B.A.N.T. training):

- Budget – Do we meet the parent's budget? To get an idea ask what their profession is, what is their husband or wife's profession? Or ask which school their children study at. For example, if they are business owners or senior managers of a corporation, it is most likely they can afford A.L.L. courses. If their children study at a private or international school, it is also most likely that they can afford A.L.L. courses. Asking demographic type questions like this can assist you.

- Authority – Does the prospect have the decision-making authority, or is he/she an influencer? Generally the mother is the decision maker. Sometimes however, a father who is the sole income earner also has input and influence over the final buying decision. If both parents are not together and you are told one parent needs to consult with the other, offer politely to call the parent who is not in attendance to explain any sales or closing details. Additionally, invite them to visit the campus as soon as possible to help both parents decide.
- Need – What is the prospect's need? Have we met that? Have you clearly identified all their pain points? Addressed the pain points with the A.L.L. solutions/courses? Have you kept asking open questions to clearly identify all objections so doubts and questions in the parent's mind are not left unanswered?
- Timeframe – Ready to buy? How soon? Are they enrolled somewhere else for English? Can the student start with A.L.L. Math first then start English once their current course at ABC campus is completed?

If the parent has met 3 or more B.A.N.T. criteria, they are most likely ready to buy and are a HOT prospect. Two typical close/commitment scenarios available here:

- Primary: The parent agrees to make payment and enroll their child. This is followed by a placement test to get their leveling right for class.
- Secondary: The parent agrees to a placement test and/or a demo class before making a decision to enroll their child.

At all times during the sales presentation, you should be primarily aiming to close with a sale.

Only have a parent commit to a placement test and/or demo class as a secondary, backup option to obtain continued commitment.

Possible pre-scenarios for you to consider your plan of action to close the sale for the 2 commitment scenarios above:

- A: A parent has pre-registered for a PT and/or Demo or campus event with us (usually a digital, database telesales or talk 2 us enquiry), their details are already on our CRM/enrolment system and so when they visit the campus:
- If they are early, and are waiting for their PT/Demo/event session to begin, you must do the consultation with them immediately in an attempt to close the sale, before taking them through the PT/Demo/event. Usually if you have closed the sale, the parent will not attend the Demo and just attend the event and PT.

- B: A parent who is a walk in or referral may have not pre-registered for a PT/Demo/event but have come along to visit the campus. After the introduction stage and getting their information recorded on the CRM/enrolment system, you must do the consultation first and attempt to close the sale, before allowing them to do the PT/Demo/event with us.
- C: If the parent has walked in at a time without a scheduled PT/Demo/event/class, it is even more imperative that if you do not close the sale after consultation, you correctly record their information on the CRM/enrolment system for follow up to reschedule them another time for PT/Demo/event. However, try to keep them on site and continue to try to close with at least a PT if an available teacher is ready. Additionally, if a class similar to their child's level is in action, allow the parent to view the class with the permission of the Head Teacher. This will at least give the parents a good idea about the demo, again an opportunity for you to close the sale.

In order of preference:

1. ALWAYS try to close the sale after the first consultation.
2. If you cannot close the sale after consultation, your next tool is the PT. Your CCM should have teachers for PTs prepared, ready and available whenever possible. For example, a teacher at your campus may be there doing lesson planning, however if an opportunity for a PT takes place due to a walk-in, the teacher must make themselves available. The PT is free of charge, allows the student to interact with a western teacher, makes a good impression on parents and helps a parent to understand their child's needs so we can address them in our sales presentation.
 - As part of your sales presentation, take out the "Steps to Fluency" chart to show how we use the placement test to see where they are now and then give the parents an indication of how much progress their child can make every 6 months.
3. If you cannot close the sale after the PT, allow the parents to the Demo class. Demo classes are your last resort to close as they take time. Parents want their kids to do them but don't necessarily wait around and are not as readily available (they are usually scheduled, not random).
4. Closing in points 1 and 2 are the ideal situations to be in.

Strong Primary Closes are:

- "Are you happy that we've covered everything and would you like to go ahead?"
- "When would you like your child to start studying?"

- “Which payment method and course selection works best for you?”
- “How would you like to pay?”
- “Did you want to hear about any financing or other offers that we are running?”

If it is closer to the end, a nice surprise like this can help us close the sale.

Strong Secondary Closes are:

- “We have a teacher available right now actually, would you like to take a placement test immediately? The teacher can speak to you directly about your child’s progress and what is the best class / level for them to study with us.”
- “We have a Kindy class at the right level of your child running right now actually. Would you like to view the class? I can ask the teacher if your child can quickly participate in the class to get a feel for the course and our teaching?”
- To help us recommend which class is best for your child I suggest we test their current level. It only takes X minutes and they will meet one of our teachers. Which date and time works best for you (offer options)”
- “Would you like to come in on Thursday or Friday for a placement test?”
- “I’m wondering if you and your child can attend the demo lesson on Saturday this week at 2.15pm to 3.15pm or Saturday next week?”
- The manner in which a sale is concluded depends on the style of the decision-maker or parent - watch out for the signs:
- No-nonsense parents decide very quickly, may even have been referred and may be a little irritated if you leave matters hanging after they've indicated they're happy.
- Cautious technical/detailed parents will want every detail covered and may need time to think, to see a PT result and sit in a Demo class so don't push them, but be patient and make sure they have all the information they need. Also make sure you have addressed their key issues/concerns in your sales presentation.
- Very friendly parents may actually say yes before they're ready, in which case you need to ensure that everything is suitably covered so nothing can rebound later.

Increase your chances of closing conversion

The right EC consults the right parent. Refer to this parent type color guide by well-known psychiatrist, Carl Jung to help you identify and understand your parent better:

- Buying is an emotional decision. If the parent trusts you and believes in you then they will enroll their child. Avoid simply talking too much about technical features or functional benefits of the A.L.L. product/service. These technical or functional points should be the solution for the parent's pain points only.
- Never say bad things about the competition - it undermines A.L.L.'s credibility and integrity – If a parent mentions a competitor you should just say that you love working with A.L.L. and just want to focus on how A.L.L. can change their child's life.
- Using the parent-type diagrams, always make sure you match the same or similar EC-types to work with the parents to ensure a higher chance of conversion – i.e. a "red" parent should have a "blue" or "red" type EC to consult them. An EC who is "green" or "yellow" may not be the correct profile match to convert the sale.
- Objections – Do not leave unanswered questions. The final step of closing is to deal with possible difficult parents and all their objections or FAQs. Do not leave doubts or unanswered questions in a parent's mind. All possible objections and FAQs can be found in Appendix 1 and 2. We can add to these Appendices further in future.

Our 5 Sales Steps

Step 5: Follow-up

IMMEDIATELY after the sale, the EC must carry out a number of important processes:

All relevant paperwork must be completed and copies provided to the parent; e.g. enrolment forms, red invoices, class information and instructions etc.

“Thank you for choosing A.L.L. for your children. Please read carefully all the regulations of our campus and fill in this registration form. Here is your receipt with your child’s information. The first class starts on ... Please arrive 10 minutes earlier before the start of class so that your child can start class on time.”

“This is our business card/ name card. During his/her course, if you have any questions or need any support, you can contact this phone number or email me through... Thank you.”

Parent follow-up and problem resolution must always be EC’s responsibility, who should consider themselves the 'guardian' of the parent and student.

Parents rightly hold their ECs responsible for what happens after the sale is made, and good conscientious follow-up will usually be rewarded with referrals to other parent.

Follow the current steps pre and post-sale:

1. Before the 1st lesson – Call the parents to remind them about start date, class schedule and classroom to make sure everything is in order before their first day at A.L.L.
2. Before the 5th lesson, after the 4th lesson - Call parents to ask if they are happy with the course so far, the teacher etc... are to collect brief feedback. Also ask if the parents are using our systems and if their child is using our digital online resources properly, and if they require any support. Repeat this after every 4 lessons or 2 weeks. The CRM will prompt you.
3. If feedback is good after 6 weeks from parents, call parents from the 13th to 16th lesson to remind and persuade the parents to purchase additional courses or a make a referral. At this point, offer our promotion for referrals over the phone. Remind parents to log in to the LMS to review results and other communications from us. Repeat this every 4 lessons or 2 weeks. The CRM will prompt you.

Dos and Don'ts

Here is a summary of the DO's and DO NOT's of the A.L.L. Sales Process:

DO	DO NOT
• Lobby area and desks neat, tidy, bright. • Uniform, make-up and be seated nicely. • Keep your head-up, eyes towards the lobby area, smile, stand up and make eye contact toward customers and invite them to settle in the consulting booth/seat. • Make sure your computer monitor is not in the way of your face to face interaction with the customer • Show care to customers: Is it rainy, hot/cold weather outside? Can I get you a warm tea? • Show an attitude of enthusiasm, friendliness and support to customers. • Give parents warm water when seeing them, open the door when customers come • Find common things (referral, school, location...) to build the customer's trust & rapport • Actively introduce your name and ask the customer and student's name. Repeat customer's name 3 times per 5 minutes. • Polite posture and positive body language toward customers. • Ready to use sales presentation (books, course information, what makes us different...) as well as working tools in order to create customer's faith. • Always show empathy towards customers • Ask precise questions to understand the customers' needs. • Listen to customers (repeat customer's keywords in your own way). • When you do not know the answer to something, say you do not know but you will find out immediately. • Speak English only with students • Keep promises and have good follow-up • Show customers the full campus	• Have a cold, unsociable and unfriendly face • Untidy clothes, bad looking appearance • Colorful nails. • Flat and cold voice, tone. • Not listening, not asking enough questions or talking too much. Not showing you care about the customer's needs. • Do not eat food or use private devices (telephone, FB...) or chat at the front office/lobby when customers visit • Laugh out loud. • Ask information but forget to record, write it down or forget to use it to help the customer. • Say bad things about our competitors. • Gossip about parents • Use negative/daily speaking words like "slow, ignorant, lazy" • Ignore customers when they are talking. • Say NO/ I CANNOT. • Ignore customers. • Impolite/rudeness (Strong words or argue with customers)

experience

- Provide the customer with a campus name card after the sales process

Scripts

Telemarketing Call Script Template:

Introduce yourself - Say your name and which company you work for. You need to sound confident and energetic.

After you say, "This is [name] from [company]," pause.

This is hard for ECs. You want to jump straight into their pitch. But take a deep breath and say nothing for 5 seconds.

When you pause, your parent is searching their brain for who you could be. It sounds like you know them -- are you a client? A former co-worker? A current one?

Establish rapport. Hit them with a question to establish some rapport but makes them smile.

Your goal: Get them talking and prove you're familiar with them and their children's needs particularly if you got their contact information from a marketing event/activation.

EC: "I saw your daughter recently enjoyed our visit to her school XXX Primary School. She really enjoyed when our teachers did the game show contest for her class. Does she like learning with foreign teachers?"

A good question is topical and makes someone smile. If they seem receptive to chatting, ask them a follow-up question.

EC: "Have you had a chance to take your daughter to any exclusive English/Math/Science events?"

Use a positioning statement.

A positioning statement shows your prospect you understand their challenges with their child's learning.

EC: "I work with lots of students and have been in the education industry for X years. Most parents with children your daughter's age is looking for a school that provides X, Y, Z in terms of learning and X, Y, Z in terms of progress. We have a fantastic technology driven methodology here, which can help your child excel even further. Does that interest you?"

Since you've pre-qualified them from a marketing event or activation, they'll always say "yes."

Campus Sales Handbook

Simply say, "Tell me more about that."

Now go to your open questions. Now they'll explain their pain points and objectives - valuable information to start building your pitch.

Once they've finished explaining their pain points, repeat what you have heard back to them: "So, what I'm hearing is ..." and offer to set up a PT or Demo for their children.

Usually, the parent agrees to register and throws out a time weeks or months in the future. ECs need to be more specific straight away, "How about tomorrow?" "How about this Saturday at 3pm? Our campus has a very fun event also running with our teachers at the same time" Most of the time, parents respond with, "Sure, what time?"

Parents want ECs to make it easy for them. By giving them a chance to talk about their pain points, and showing them you might have a solution, you'll improve their day.

That means stronger relationships and ultimately, more sales.

Sample Script:

EC: Hello anh / chi, I am A customer care specialist from American Learning Lab here in Ho Chi Minh City. I was wondering if you have a few minutes to speak?

Customer (if agreed): Ok, sure.

EC: Thank you anh / chi. I would like to see if you would like to invite your child to visit our campus for an English / Math placement test and complimentary free demonstration class we are organizing this weekend.

This week we also have special merchandise and gifts to thank children who attend our English / Math placement test and demonstration classes. We have a limited slot of XX students this Saturday at XXPM program.

It is no obligation and gives you a great opportunity to allow your child to interact with a foreign teacher for part of the day, have fun and also experience a different learning environment to what they are used to.

Customer: When is it again and how long will it be for?

EC: This weekend from Friday XX to Sunday XX. A session will take about 45-60 minutes for the placement test and demonstration class.

Customer: O, what are my options?

EC: At the moment, I have the following slots available (Give 2 hours in 1 day for the customer to choose from). Which session is suitable for you?

Customer: Ok I would like session XXXX on XXXX

EC: Thank you anh / chi. I would like to confirm that I have registered you for this weekend. Time of participation: XXXX on XXXX at A.L.L. branch XXXX. I will send you a message / SMS to confirm all the details. Many thanks and have a great day!

Asking for Referrals Template:

When to do it: Only once you have had several positive interactions with the parent and their children. For example, their children just received a great test result or praise from their teacher. Here's what to say:

EC: "I would love to have some further support from you, but only if you're comfortable with it."

Customer: "Sure, what is it?"

EC: "You have been so great to work with, and I would love to find more customers like you. Do you know any other parents/students that need help with XXXX (pain point)?" (Make your ask very specific here: what kind of client are you looking for?)

Customer: "Yes, I do. I can think of a couple people right off the top of my head."

You: "That's great. Would you feel comfortable introducing me to them? I would really appreciate a quick email introduction or instant message. I even have an intro message written if that makes it easier for you."

Customer: "Sure, I'd be happy to do that."

You: "Thank you so much. I really appreciate it! I also have a referral program – if one of your referral becomes a client, I offer XXXX." (Take note of any current referral incentive, make sure to mention it)

Asking a Referred Client for Introductions

When to do it: One of your clients, Trang, has successfully referred you to Minh. Minh is now a new client of yours and you want to know if Minh can introduce you to other parents. Here's what to say:

EC: "I've really enjoyed working with you thus far and helping your child/children improve their learning. I'm happy and grateful that Trang introduced us! If it weren't for her, I would've never met you. So, I wanted to ask if you knew any other parents who are looking for XXXX for their child/children and if you would feel comfortable introducing them to me?"

Laying the Groundwork for Future Referrals

When to do it: You've asked a parent for a referral, but they can't think of anyone to introduce you to. However, you want them to think of you the next time they meet someone who could be a good fit for ALL. Here's what to say:

EC: "I was wondering if you would feel comfortable introducing me to anyone you know who is looking for XXXX help for their child/children?"

Customer: "Hmmm, I don't know anyone right now who needs XXXX help."

EC: "That's ok! But, if you do think of any parents in future, would you please keep me in mind? I'd love to work with more parents like you, and I find that people hang around in similar groups. I'd appreciate anyone you could introduce me to!"

Customer: "Sure, I can do that."

EC: "Great, thank you. Give me a call or send me an email if you know of any parents who would be a good fit!"

Walk-In Parents Template: GET THE CUSTOMER TALKING

A walk-in customer is never “just looking.” They came into your center because at some level they perceived a need or want a solution to a pain point. There is a high chance they are there to buy.

The way you greet walk-in customers has a huge impact on sales. Use these strategies for walk-in customers:

1. Show that you recognize them and “SEE” them.

An effective greeting would be, “Well, Hello! It’s nice to see you! Thank you for visiting our center.”

Customers return to secure, friendly environments. Show that you value their presence, and they’ll want to come back with their children or even sign up quickly as a sale.

Ask if they’ve been in before “Hi, have you visited our center before?”

This type of greeting helps customers feel like they are visiting a home. It is more personal and familiar. Familiar means safe. Safe means trust. And trust means buy.

If you have seen the customer walk past before or walk-in before, use “Welcome back, we appreciate you visiting our center to see us again.” That provides that all-important recognition.

If this is the visitor’s first visit, then the employee has a great excuse to show them around, identify needs and point out specials (refer back to our 5 steps).

Ask about the weather. It's disarming, and gets the customer talking about something where they can be the expert. As they talk about how hot or rainy it is outside, respond to the customer's comments. That shows that you're listening. Once you've addressed their comments about the weather, you can then transition from the weather to identifying their needs.

"Well, at least you're in from out of the wind now. I'll get you a cup of tea. What brings you in aside from the rainy weather?"

Complement the customer appropriately. If you do it wrong, you can be construed as being fake and will lose the most important thing you need to sell - trust.

So do not offer a general Vietnamese complement such as, "You are such a beautiful mother." Instead make sure your complement is relevant and specific. You might say, "That scarf is terrific; its summer colors are perfect with your outfit."

Also with a walk-in customer, always acknowledge they have walked in with a conversation piece. For example, point out our Smart Lab or our Pepper Robot to draw a comment from the customer. It gets the customer talking, questioning and interested.

Timing is everything

More important than what you say, is the fact that the visitor is acknowledged - not necessarily served - the moment they enter. Greet all customers within 30 seconds of them entering your center.

APPENDIX 1: Objection scenarios

- If objections arise, establish the precise nature of the objection. For example, "tell me more, why do you say that?" or "I would like to understand what makes you say that?" are usually good starts. Never disagree with the objection - show understanding.
- Always probe deeper to get to the real issue, objections may result from misunderstandings, you as the EC must clarify quickly.
- Lots of objections are simply a request for more information, so avoid responding by trying to re-sell the benefit - simply ask and probe instead; the best standard response is something like "I understand why that could be an issue, can I ask you to tell me more about why it is and what's important for you here?"
- The 'feel-felt-found' technique is another popular tactic in overcoming objections: this is an example response built around the three 'feel-felt-found' elements: "I understand how you feel/why you feel that...//other parents have felt just the same/that...//But (or 'And') when... they have found that..."
- "We understand about the concerns parents usually have and FEEL when choosing an English program for their child to study long-term. All parents have FELT the same as you have shared with me. But after a period of having their children study here at A.L.L. English, each parent has gladly FOUND and witnessed their child's progress and improvement, not only with their English language skills but also increased confidence, activeness and future skills as well. For example, Ms. Y, who is a local, well-known school principal, sends her child to A.L.L. English. She has been with us for about 5 months now and her progress is exceptional etc... That is the level of trust our parents have with us, the educators are also sending their children to our campus because of our quality and good end results.”

- By this stage, you may see some signs that the parent is clearly visualizing or talking in terms of their child studying at A.L.L.. This is called buying warmth. Certain questions and comments from parents are described as buying signals because they indicate that they are ready to buy.

APPENDIX 2: FAQs & further objections

Q: Why are the course fees at A.L.L. so expensive/high?

A: That is the common feedback we have from most parents when they first enroll their children with us. We can assure you that our courses and teachers are of great quality and integrity and we would rather call it an investment, not a fee. Learning is a life changing investment so why compromise? For your investment, you are getting so much more than you will pay for (use USPs from sales presentation again here to re-illustrate quickly the benefits for the parent)

Q: I need some time to consider since our child is a little bit too young to study. (The child is 3 and a half years old, so is ready for our course)

A: Exposing your child to new environments and learning at an early age promotes increased communication skills. In fact, according to studies, preschool children who are exposed to language by hearing words early on tend to do well in school. Early exposure to learning and language also helps promotes longer attention spans, which is an important skill for your child to be able to concentrate. Having early skills also builds on listening skills, creativity and thinking skills early.

Q: What if our child fails their end-of-course exam? If our child is absent in a few lessons, can he/she have a makeup class or refund on tuition fee?

A: A.L.L. has a studying result guarantee policy. If a student fails, they can retake the course, 100% free under the following circumstances:
The child's class attendance rate was above 90% of the failed course and they attended all tests but still failed. We do not refund tuition fees.

Q: Which teaching method is used by A.L.L. to educate my child?

A: ACADEMIC TO DEVELOP FOR ENGLISH AND MATH

Q: What are the 4Cs?

A: The 4Cs are communication, creativity, collaboration and critical thinking – they are 21st century skills that are not a teaching method but a learning goal. Teachers at A.L.L. will help your child improve these skills by involving them in activities such as:

- Games and group project learning
- Problem solving and quizzes
- Research skills and homework practice
- Encouraging creativity through role-play, design and dexterity activities
- Encourage self-learning
- Encourage thinking and exploring – teachers will not tell the answer straight away to students, but instead provide sufficient help and support which will gradually enable the process of understanding

Q: What is the difference between courses at A.L.L. and those at other campus schools?

A: (1) *We are Pioneers of the best quality:

- 100% western (US, UK), fully qualified teachers in major city campus.
- 100% western (US, UK) teacher management
- 100% triple qualified teachers, Bachelor's Degree, CELTA / Maths equivalent and ICT certified by Microsoft/UNESCO/Pearson Global
- Our programs and courses are curated by academic experts with deep experience and understanding of Vietnamese learners
- We are benchmarked to US and Internationally recognised exams across English/Math/Science
- Social values incorporated into all our lessons
- More than any other campus, we like to educate and keep in touch with parents regularly through our digital reporting available to you on our parent portal.

(2) We prepare your child for the future. Our teaching is technology/AI and digital literacy driven.

- We are first in Vietnam to be legitimately incorporate technology and AI driven techniques in our physical classrooms and in our lessons (we show parents smart TVs, tablets and software in classrooms and Smart Labs)
- We use technology better than any other education provider in Vietnam, for example adaptive assessment in our Math program or speech recognition to help our students practice their pronunciation live in class and at home.
- Students will be more profoundly digitally literate and at a more advanced after studying at A.L.L.

(3) US programs and courses

- We bring the best US standard programs and courses to Vietnam for a number of reasons:
 - o US education standards and programs are designed specifically to prepare students to compete in a global market and prepare them for more workforce and university training programs.
 - o US standard programs and courses purposely focus on and develop the use of problem-solving skills and reasoning, teachers enable students to better prepare not only for higher education but also for future work and career success.
 - o US standard programs and courses are automatically benchmarked by international standards and will compare favourably to standards of other countries. Students who study US programs or courses improve their personal ranking on the global scene.
 - o US standard programs are accelerated in nature; they develop skills students' need in adulthood at an earlier age than any other country in the world.

Q: How many courses will it take for my children to improve their English/Math/Science?

A: Our courses are designed to help students improve communication skills and quickly and effectively. Therefore after every level of study, our students can apply what they learnt in class to real life and daily with ease (Refer to the "Steps to Fluency", Can Dos and Rubrics to demonstrate achievement and progress expected at each level).

Q: Do courses at A.L.L. support learning of the same subjects at regular school?

A: At regular local schools, the program is determined by DOET. We use US standard programs that are international in context and may not align with everything DOET is instructing regular local schools to teach.

Q: Does A.L.L. have any discount of course fees for parents?

A: We don't apply immediate discounts of course fees but we do have a great loyalty and rewards schemes.

Currently we have the following course fee loyalty policy:

- X% off for 2 or more members of the family, plus gifts and Loyalty points you can use on future courses.
- For referrals, a discount of XXX VND for introduced parents and a voucher of XXX VND for the referrer.
- Partnerships: (to be updated)

Q: Can I pay monthly?

A: Yes, you may pay monthly. We have interest free and points loyalty programs with a number of banks in Vietnam.

For other forms of payment, A.L.L. does not have any policy that allows monthly payment. There is only payment per course. Making payment for our full year level course is the most economical and ensures a place in our classes for your child. Additionally, it ensures, continuous study and thus no academic interruptions and progress for your child.

Q: I have two children at different ages and different courses, why do the fees remain the same? I think the younger one should receive a lower course fee?

A: Although at different ages, A.L.L. still applies the same teaching methods and resources. The amount of time required for each course is also the same, with equally qualified teachers. A.L.L. has a stable fee policy, which ensures there will be no surprise increase in course fees as the student reaches higher course levels. In addition, siblings of the students will receive our highest discount of 10%, under our loyalty and rewards scheme.

Q: Is the class well equipped?

A: Our classes are well equipped and comfortable at all times, with guaranteed interactions with the smart TV and in-class portable smart devices for personalized learning. Our teaching method always involves active learning, interactions with the teachers, peers and smart technology.

A.L.L. classrooms are designed especially for students aged 3-12, therefore the facilities will be appropriate for each and every age group and ergonomically correct furniture features in all our classrooms.

Q: Does my child remain close to the teacher?

A: Yes your child remains in a group at all times in class with the teacher and TAs. This ensures their continuous supervision and safety.

Q: If we miss a lesson do we have make-up classes or discount at the next course?

A: A.L.L.'s policies only allow discounts when the student joins the course later in the schedule than the first lesson. In case of students missing more than 3 lessons, A.L.L. will arrange a tutoring schedule for the students to catch up on their study.

Q: Who will help my children if they do not understand the lesson?

A: Our teachers will be responsible for the lecturing in class. They are selectively chosen by A.L.L. standards and are triple qualified. When the student does not understand the lesson, the teacher and our academic department will arrange tutoring sessions for the student in addition to their normal lessons to ensure they understand the lessons.

Q: The fees are rising and class sizes are also increasing, will the quality of the class be assured? I think an 8-student class is much better than an 18-student class.

A: With our specialized technology driven lessons, A.L.L. guarantees the interactions between teacher, fellow students and individualized practice. Group project and teamwork will create dynamic interactions in students, making the learning process active and easier to understand. There is no compromise to our quality.

Q: Where do A.L.L. teachers come from?

A: 100% of our teachers and their managers are foreign, most of who are from the UK, the US, Australia, Canada, New Zealand and some other English speaking countries. English is a global language so when children listen to different accents from different countries; they are exposed to more differences and nuances in language and cultures. All of A.L.L. teachers are chosen with high standard benchmarks, going through regular internal training and observations to improve teaching quality.

Q: Do your teachers have pedagogical degree and teaching experience?

A: In addition to the fact that all of our teachers are foreign, they must also meet all of these requirements:

- Graduate with a bachelor degree
- Have an English teaching qualification such as: TESOL, TEFL, CELTA, TKT or equivalent.

- Have other subject teaching qualifications such as XXXX
- Are ICT certified also so are qualified teachers of technology.

Our teachers also participate in regular monthly training courses to update new teaching methods. Our academic team and teachers do cross-observation and give constructive feedback to each other to improve our teaching quality.

Q: How can foreign teachers understand the needs or the culture of Vietnamese student to facilitate their study?

A: When a teacher starts working in A.L.L., he/she is required to participate in workshops learning about the Vietnamese culture, about the needs and teaching methods that are optimal for Vietnamese students. Our teachers are always mindful of the cultural differences when preparing lesson plans to make sure they can deliver the lessons most effectively. This training is done within the first month of a teacher joining A.L.L. and is part of our standard induction process.

Q: Why does A.L.L. have Asian teachers like Filipinos, or overseas Vietnamese, “colored” teachers...?

A: All of our teachers are recruited based on A.L.L.’s criteria: no discrimination on their race, skin color or religion. All our teachers are supervised by our Learning Experience Management Department on teaching quality. English is a global language so when listened to different accents from different countries, children can get used to them and not become unfamiliar with all English speaking accents.

Q: Our children are very young and shy, when they interact with foreign teachers, will they be confident enough to communicate?

A: A.L.L. teachers are very friendly and passionate about their jobs. They always try to engage, help and support their students to be more confident and open. Besides, our dynamic learning environment and methods aim to maximize the child’s ability to communicate between them, fellow learners and their teachers.

Q: What is the function of teaching assistants?

A: Our teaching assistants’ duties, includes:

- Support students in class
- Supervise the learning process of students
- Encourage students to participate in activities
- Support personal issues in class to ensure safety for the students at A.L.L.
- They do not teach any part of the lesson or class.

Q: A.L.L. is opening more and more campuss, how do we know if the teaching quality is assured?

A: At A.L.L., we assure the quality at every campus is the same around the country as we always have:

- Systematic management in recruitment and training for teachers

- Academic Managers with professional experience, constantly checking and supporting teachers in their jobs
- Experienced CCMs
- A high level, experienced management and advisory board.

Q: Students use original books or photocopied ones? Is the textbook updated?

- We use original textbooks from famous publishing houses e.g. Cengage / Pearson
- Our textbooks are frequently updated with the newest versions.
- Beside textbooks, students are also provided other materials prepared by our teachers, to further enhance their study.

Q: Do we have online learning software in A.L.L.?

A: At A.L.L., there are many online learning tools to help track student learning:

- TO BE UPDATED BY ACADEMIC

Q: Is the fire protection system at A.L.L. safe?

A: All A.L.L. campus are strictly required to meet these following obligations:

- The buildings are designed to meet Fire Protection Standards and are equipped with up-to-date Fire Protection equipment
- All A.L.L. buildings receive expertise advice and audits from the local Fire Protection agency
- All teachers and staffs are trained for Fire Protection safety
- All classes are under teachers' supervised training for fire incidence procedure. Therefore, students will have full understanding of the building structure for safely escape in case of incidence.
- Every year A.L.L. provides Fire Protection training and practice for staff to prepare them with full understanding and ability to handle situations when necessary.

Q: What extracurricular activities do you provide?

A: Extracurricular activities at A.L.L. include a series of events like Halloween festivals, Mid-Autumn festival, Summer Outings events, Christmas events, movies, music, art and homework clubs. All extracurricular activities are led and guided by A.L.L. teachers to create new experiences for students outside the classroom. This gives opportunities for the children to interact with their teachers and classmates, to enhance communication skill. Moreover, through these activities, kids will learn new additional vocabulary out of the textbook based on the themes of the activities.

Q: When I ask my children what they studied in class today, they cannot answer.

A: Open the book! Summarizing learning is a really advanced skill!!! Children don't think about topic titles, they think about activities. So, open the book let the children look at the key words and pictures, and ask them to tell you some examples. Then they will start to talk about activities – i.e. learning about food, ‘We had a shop, and the teacher gave us cards with food on....’

Q: Why did my children fail the final exam when they received good comments during the course?

A: Lots of reasons – children aren’t used to doing exams. It’s a skill, and must be practiced and learned. Most students do well in class because they have lots of visual clues – like in real life. Tests are not like real life so are much harder. With some support, your child can probably pass the test.

English Language specific objections:

Q: Students have studied at A.L.L. for 3 years but still now they only speak simple words, they can’t compose long sentences.

A: They can make sentences – depending on the topic. What many parents are asking is for children to TRANSLATE long sentences from Vietnamese into English – this is very challenging. In class, first they look at key words, then they build them into sentences. Look at key words first with your children and they will start to make longer phrases – but they can’t do it with any warning!

Q: Teachers don’t correct the children’s pronunciation

A: They do – but in English teaching, it’s not good to interrupt someone when they are speaking because they will always hesitate. Better to let the student finish speaking and correct the most common errors after. This is standard educational practice.

Q: How can Kindy students can manage English on their own when they still don’t know how to use their mother language correctly?

A: All the research says that children learn English in a certain order – not exactly as their mother tongue but similar. First simple nouns (book, pen, ball), then pronouns – he, she, his, then simple verbs – go, look etc. So, if the children can do the same skills in Vietnamese, they can learn them in English.

Q: The children cannot master the grammar even when they studied here for a long time (3-4 years)

A: This usually means the students’ grammar is not perfect. This is very normal because the earliest errors take the most time to fix! Advanced Vietnamese speakers of English often make small errors confusing him/her or adding ‘s’ to plurals’. This is normal and improves over time. Students must continue to learn, not go over and over small errors.
